Makaweli, Kauai, H. I., June 17, 1902. Editor Commercial News:

Dear Sir-Your esteemed favor of May 29th was duly received. I note the contents, and in answer to your request for a few lines occasionally regarding weather conditions in this region, I have to say that for nine or ten months of the year the state of the weather is so equable and uniform, one day is so much like the one preceding George Mumby, Mrs. Otterstrom and Sprcial attention given to or following, that the keeping of recbecomes very uninteresting. Records have been kept for several years at this plantation which are distinctly local-records kept three miles on either side of this plantation may vary a great deal from those kept at this place. This place, like all the others, depends on the rainfall for its bountiful crops of sugar. This plantation has an extensive system of irrigation ditches which reaches every piece of cultivated land, however remote it may be. The source of supply is the Hanapepe river, a small mountain stream, and the use of the water is so nicely controlled by a system of traps and water gates that very little is wasted, and there is now a project under way increasing the irrigation facilities to double the present acreage of cultivated land, and incidentally to double its sugar producing capacity, and within a very few years it is expected this will be a 30,000-ton planta-

Ircquois Sailed Away.

The U. S. S. Iroquois, Captain Rodman, sailed yesterday for a cruise about the islands. She first sails to the southern coast of Molokai, then on to Lanai and will reach Lahaina tomorrow night. Target practice will be had off Molokai. The Iroquois will go around Hawaii, along the northern coast of Maui, around Oahu, and thence to Kauai and Niihau.
